North Carolina Child Support Services (NCCSS) administers the North Carolina child support program under Title IV-D of the Social Security Act. Services are available to a parent, alleged fathers, non-parent caretakers, minor children, social services agencies and judicial officials. The child support program’s goal is to provide the best possible services to families for children. Whether you are making an application for child support services as a recipient of assistance from other social services programs (Temporary Assistance to Needy Families [TANF], Foster Care and/or Medicaid) or requesting child support services as a non-public assistance applicant, your involvement, information, and contributions are important and required.

NORTH CAROLINA CHILD SUPPORT SERVICES INFORMATION

PROGRAM SERVICES

NCCSS provide child support services to assist families in meeting their financial obligations for children. There is no residency or citizenship eligibility requirement for services. Depending on the circumstances of each family, one or more of the following services may be appropriate:

- Location of noncustodial parent – State, federal, local and national resources are used to assist in collecting information about a parent, such as their residence, employment and/or financial assets.
- Paternity establishment – A determination of parental legal responsibility for the child(ren) is necessary before a parent can be required to pay support. If a child’s parents were not married to each other at the time of the child’s birth, arrangement of paternity testing may be offered to the parties, if appropriate.
- Support establishment – In North Carolina, support is determined using the guidelines established in state law. N.C. Child Support Guidelines consider both parent’s monthly gross incomes, the amount of time the child spends with each parent and various expenses. NCCSS seeks to establish a court order requiring a parent to provide child and/or medical support for child(ren) based on the N.C. Child Support Guidelines.
- Collection of support – Child support payments through bank draft, money order, or check are sent to N.C. Child Support Centralized Collection (NCCSCC). A large amount of child support payments is deducted from a parent’s wages and sent to NCCSCC by an employer. North Carolina Child Support Services records and disburses all collected child support payments to families by personal direct deposit into a bank account or debit card.
- Enforcement of support – Enforcement of an established or existing child support, spousal support, and/or medical support court order is met by wage withholding, tax refund offset, liens, professional license/passport revocation, credit reporting, court action or other collection remedies. Support orders may be reviewed for modification (increase/decrease) every three years or more often, if warranted.

NCCSS does not provide the following services: custody, visitation or the establishment of spousal support obligations.

PROGRAM FEES

- Application Fee – Families receiving public assistance (TANF, Medicaid and/or Foster Care) are not charged an application fee for support services. Families that are not receiving public assistance are charged a non-refundable application fee of up to $25. If the applicant’s income is below 100 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines, a reduced application fee of $10 is available. Contact your local child support agency for additional information about qualifying for the reduced application fee. The application fee must be paid before support services can begin.

- Annual Services Fee – Each year, non-public assistance child support cases (cases that public assistance has never been provided) are charged a non-refundable $25 fee after at least $500 in support payments has been paid to the family. The annual service fee is automatically deducted from support payments made to the custodian, and is collected during each federal fiscal year, from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30.
- Administrative Offset Fees – Department of Revenue or Internal Revenue Service (IRS) fees may be deducted from the noncustodial parent’s tax refund(s) collected for past due support before being disbursed as a support payment to the custodial parent. The noncustodial parent is credited with the full tax refund(s) amount collected.
- Legal Fees – Agency attorney services and court fees are paid by the agency, or may be charged to the noncustodial parent as allowed by law. There is no cost to a custodial parent for legal fees when a court action is established by the agency. However, any costs for private legal services obtained by either parent are the parent’s responsibility.

PROGRAM DISTRIBUTION

- Distribution of Support – Support payments are disbursed in accordance with federal regulations. Support payments are paid toward all the noncustodial parent’s current support obligations first, except for tax refund offsets which are paid toward any state debt owed first. Support payments are deposited to an agency-issued debit card or personal bank account. Support payments exceeding the noncustodial parent’s current support obligations are applied to any past due support.
- Tax Refund Offset – Support payments received from a joint tax return offset may not be distributed for up to six months. The IRS may adjust a refund amount, which may require the custodial parent to return some or all a support payment received from a tax refund. Tax refund offsets are applied to eligible cases annually.

OTHER PROGRAM POLICIES & INFORMATION

- Disclosure of SSN – Social Security numbers are obtained and kept on file at the local child support agency to locate and identify individual’s assets for the purposes of establishing, modifying and enforcing child support obligations. Enrolling a child in health care coverage may require the release of the child’s Social Security number and mailing address to the other parent’s employer, or the release of the child’s Social Security number to the other parent.
- Confidentiality – Child support case records are not public records. The information in your case may be discussed with or given to other state child support services, and/or other public agencies that can legally receive such information and to the other parent or his/her attorney to the extent required by law. If the local child support agency is notified that family/domestic violence is an issue, the local child support agency must take additional steps to further safeguard information.
- Nondiscrimination – In accordance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, NCCSS ensures that all individuals are treated equally, and that no person is discriminated against in the selection or eligibility to receive services in any manner prohibited by law.
- Intergovernmental Cases – Federal law requires every state to enact the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) 2008 to aid states in working together to establish and enforce child support orders. Every state, and many tribes, foreign countries, territories or tribunals have an agency to enforce child support orders. If parents do not live in the same state, although laws differ, child support agencies work with each other to locate parents and to establish and enforce orders.
- Case Management Decisions – Local child support agencies determine the appropriate services for child support cases, as well as the way services are delivered by the agency. Reasonable and necessary actions to best serve your case will be considered; however, specific time frames or results cannot be guaranteed.

North Carolina Child Support Services (NCCSS) administers the North Carolina child support program under Title IV-D of the Social Security Act. Services are available to a parent, alleged fathers, non-parent caretakers, minor children, social services agencies, and judicial officials. The child support program's goal is to provide the best possible services to families for children. Whether you are making an application for child support services as a recipient of assistance from other social services programs (Temporary Assistance to Needy Families [TANF], Foster Care and/or Medicaid) or requesting child support services as a non-public assistance applicant, your involvement, information, and contributions are important and required.

PROGRAM SERVICES

NCCSS provide child support services to assist families in meeting their financial obligations for children. There is no residency or citizenship eligibility requirement for services. Depending on the circumstances of each family, one or more of the following services may be appropriate:

- Location of noncustodial parent – State, federal, local and national resources are used to assist in collecting information about a parent, such as their residence, employment and/or financial assets.
- Paternity establishment – A determination of parental legal responsibility for the child(ren) is necessary before a parent can be required to pay support. If a child's parents were not married to each other at the time of the child's birth, arrangement of paternity testing may be offered to the parties, if appropriate.
- Support establishment – In North Carolina, support is determined using the guidelines established in State law. N.C. Child Support Guidelines consider both parent's monthly gross incomes, the amount of time the child spends with each parent and various expenses. NCCSS seeks to establish a court order requiring a parent to provide child and/or medical support for child(ren) based on the N.C. Child Support Guidelines.
- Collection of support – Child support payments through bank draft, money order or check are sent to N.C. Child Support Centralized Collection (NCCSCC). A large amount of child support payments is deducted from a parent's wages and sent to NCCSCC by an employer. North Carolina Child Support Services records and disburses all collected child support payments to families by personal direct deposit into a bank account or debit card.
- Enforcement of support – Enforcement of an established or existing child support, spousal support, and/or medical support court order is met by wage withholding, tax refund offset, liens, professional license/passport revocation, credit reporting, court action, or other collection remedies. Support orders may be reviewed for modification (increase/decrease) every three years or more often, if warranted.

NCCSS does not provide the following services: custody, visitation, or the establishment of spousal support obligations.

PROGRAM FEES

- Application Fee – Families receiving public assistance (TANF, Medicaid and/or Foster Care) are not charged an application fee for support services. Families that are not receiving public assistance are charged a non-refundable application fee of up to $25. If the applicant's income is below 100% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines, a reduced application fee of $10 is available. Contact your local child support agency for additional information about qualifying for the reduced application fee. The application fee must be paid before support services can begin.
- Annual Services Fee – Each year, non-public assistance child support cases (cases that public assistance has never been provided) are charged a non-refundable $25 fee after at least $500 in support payments has been paid to the family. The annual service fee is automatically deducted from support payments made to the custodian, and is collected during each federal fiscal year, from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30.
- Administrative Offset Fees – Department of Revenue or Internal Revenue Service (IRS) fees may be deducted from the noncustodial parent's tax refund(s) collected for past due support before being disbursed as a support payment to the custodial parent. The noncustodial parent is credited with the full tax refund(s) amount collected.
- Legal Fees – Agency attorney services and court fees are paid by the agency, or may be charged to the noncustodial parent as allowed by law. There is no cost to a custodial parent for legal fees when a court action is established by the agency. However, any costs for private legal services obtained by either parent are the parent's responsibility.

PROGRAM DISTRIBUTION

- Distribution of Support – Support payments are disbursed in accordance with federal regulations. Support payments are paid toward all the noncustodial parent's current support obligations first, except for tax refund offsets which are paid toward any state debt owed first. Support payments are deposited to an agency-issued debit card or personal bank account. Support payments exceeding the noncustodial parent's current support obligations are applied to any past due support.
- Tax Refund Offset – Support payments received from a joint tax return offset may not be distributed for up to six months. The IRS may adjust a refund amount, which may require the custodial parent to return some or all a support payment received from a tax refund. Tax refund offsets are applied to eligible cases annually.

OTHER PROGRAM POLICIES & INFORMATION

- Disclosure of SSN – Social Security numbers are obtained and kept on file at the local child support agency to locate and identify individual's assets for the purposes of establishing, modifying and enforcing child support obligations. Enrolling a child in health care coverage may require the release of the child's Social Security number and mailing address to the other parent's employer, or the release of the child's Social Security number to the other parent.
- Confidentiality – Child support case records are not public records. The information in your case may be discussed with or given to other state child support services and or other public agencies that can legally receive such information and to the other parent or his/her attorney to the extent required by law. If the local child support agency is notified that family/domestic violence is an issue, the local child support agency must take additional steps to further safeguard information.
- Nondiscrimination – In accordance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, NCCSS ensures that all individuals are treated equally, and that no person is discriminated against in the selection or eligibility to receive services in any manner prohibited by law.
- Intergovernmental Cases – Federal law requires every state to enact the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) 2008 to aid states in working together to establish and enforce child support orders. Every state and many tribes, foreign countries, territories or tribunals have an agency to enforce child support orders. If parents do not live in the same state, although laws differ, child support agencies work with each other to locate parents and to establish and enforce orders.
- Case Management Decisions – Local child support agencies determine the appropriate services for child support cases, as well as the way services are delivered by the agency. Reasonable and necessary actions to best serve your case will be considered; however, specific time frames or results cannot be guaranteed.
